Subject: Bonnie Henry's major mistakes with SARS-cov(2) virus

Bonnie Henry's first major mistake dealing with the SARS-cov(2) virus causing COVID-19 illness was to put blind faith in projections from the theories called 'models, instead of listening to experienced epidemiologists who advise that those calculations always exaggerate.

'Modelling' depends on accurate complete data, which will never exist for an infection that many people shrug off and for which cause of death is recorded and reported quite differently even within the same fiefdom, and on factors such as the bizarre situation of care aides working in more than one residence. Read articles linked from <http://www.moralindividualism.com/cv19lnks.doc> for learned recommendations.

Ms. Henry then proceeded to ignore reality – the knowledge of who is vulnerable from Italy's experience. In contrast, Florida considered that knowledge, acted to protect care residences, and succeeded without 'lockdown'. Note the many experienced epidemiologists who advise that 'lockdowns' do not work and may actually be counter-productive.

She overlooked that Italy's shortage of hospital space resulted from shoving anyone infected into hospital thus taking a bed someone critically needed. She had the benefit of Italy going first, but did not use it.

Bonnie Henry advocated lockdown, apparently changing her mind from earlier work, which may kill more people than COVID-10 – people are dying while waiting for surgery. Dying from fear of going to hospital until too late – fear fomented by her boss Hypocrite Horgan, aided by Trudeau Jr. who plays a cheap xenophobe game against the country that includes the state of Florida. (I wonder if he bashes Sweden which also succeeded without lockdowns.) Dying from suicide. And eventually from the effect of worse health from working harder or sliding into poverty because of job loss, and into booze which the BC government considers 'essential' so kept peddling it.

Meanwhile BC had problems with outbreaks in care residences, a shortage of personal protective equipment while its bureaucracies claimed not wearing a mask was better than a homemade one for lesser medical needs, and agencies that couldn't even get a meaningful list of symptoms correct. Its bureaucracies can't even get vaccine against the perennially killing corona virus INFLUENZA until five weeks after it is available less than 40 kilometres to the south .

With pandering politicians who obscure needed educational communication with their incessant puffery.

Worse in the long run is the attempts by lazy politicians to reduce what feeds and protects them – freedom, and the emotionalism that was not prevalent in past pandemics such as Hong Kong flu, swine flu, and SARS the original.

Voters! If you truly care about your health you should find and help elect candidates who will be stewards of the public trust, not erratic do-gooder control freak meddlers who've panicked into an economic Depression. Politicians who don't trust the majority of people to act sensibly – oh, maybe they imagine everyone is like themselves.

need protection against coercion by those who err.
